CONFIDENTIAL

- 7. Looking about NE across the city of Durban.
- 8. Welkom, Orange Free State. Mine owned by the Anglo-American Development Corporation.
- 9. In the lowveldt (plains) of what we call Tongaland of Natal Province.

 [Approximately 26 50S, 32 00E]. Looking W toward the Ubombo Mountains.
- 10. From same spot as picture #9, facing generally MW. This is typical terrain in the area.
- 11. Pongola River ferry, located between Mangwazana and Ndumu, Natal, South Africa. Approximately 27 25S, 32 00E/. It is the only crossing point in the vicinity.
- 12. Mission stations at Esinceni, Swaziland (near Bremersdorp \(\bar{2}6 \) 295, 31 22E\(\bar{2} \).) Picture taken looking E.
- 13. In the Bulunga mountain area, Swaziland. About 30 miles NW of Esinceni in the lowlands area. A mission station was established here, but due to the health conditions, had to be moved.
- 14. At the border of Southern Rhodesia and Portuguese East Africa.

 [Approximately 16 25S, 31 55E]. The border marking is down the road just a bit. Taken looking N from north of Mavuradona (or Mavuradontha).
- 15. Near Rusambo, Southern Rhodesia Approximately 16 40S, 32 12E7, about ten miles from the Portuguese East African border.
- 15a. Near Rusambo, Southern Rhodesia, facing generally S.
- 16. Brickmaking at Mavuradona, Southern Rhodesia. The bricks are shaped by putting the mud into the forms which make two or three at a time. They are turned out to dry a bit in the sun. When dry enough, they are built into a structure such as on the right. A fire is built inside for 36 hours, and then the bricks are dry enough to use. Most of them will be very satisfactory for local building necessities.
- Three or four miles downstream from Chirundu, Southern Rhodesia

 Approximately 15 58s, 29 00Ef on the Zambesi River. A bridge off the picture to the left links Northern and Southern Rhodesia. On the southern bank of the river, back of me as I took the picture, sugar companies are developing a processing plant. One of the engineers told me that one end of the bridge is several feet lower than the other.
